PRELIMINARY RECITALS

Pursuant to a petition filed October 08, 2013, under Wis. Admin. Code §HA 3.03, and see, 7 C.F.R. § 273.16, to review a decision by the Office of the Inspector General in regard to FoodShare benefits, a hearing was held on December 23, 2013, at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The issue for determination is whether the respondent committed an Intentional Program Violation (IPV) by trafficking her FoodShare benefits.

There appeared at that time and place the following persons:

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Petitioner (CARES # [REDACTED]) is a resident of Milwaukee County who received FS in Milwaukee County during the time period of July - October 2012. (Testimony of Ms. Dresen)
2. On November 7, 2013, the OIG prepared an Administrative Disqualification Hearing Notice alleging that the respondent trafficked her Foodshare benefits at [REDACTED] and [REDACTED], herein after referred to as [REDACTED] (Exhibit 1)

DISCUSSION

An IPV is defined at 7 C.F.R. §273.16(c) as intentionally: making a false or misleading statement or misrepresenting; concealing or withholding facts; or committing any act that constitutes a violation of the Food Stamp Act, federal regulations or any Wisconsin statute relating to the use, presentation, transfer, acquisition, receipt or possession of food stamp coupons or an authorization to participate (ATP) card.

The Department of Health Service's written policy restates federal law, below:

3.14.1 IPV Disqualification

7 CFR 273.16

A person commits an Intentional Program Violation (IPV) when s/he intentionally:

1. makes a false or misleading statement, or misrepresents, conceals or withholds facts; or
2. commits any act that constitutes a violation of the Food Stamp Act, the Food Stamp Program Regulations, or any Wisconsin statute for the purpose of using, presenting, transferring, acquiring, receiving, possessing or trafficking of FoodShare benefits or QUEST cards.

An IPV may be determined by the following means:

1. Federal, state, or local court order,
2. Administrative Disqualification Hearing (ADH) decision,
3. Pre-charge or pretrial diversion agreement initiated by a local district attorney and signed by the FoodShare recipient in accordance with federal requirements, or
4. Waiver of the right to an ADH signed by the FoodShare recipient in accordance with federal requirements.

FoodShare Wisconsin Handbook, § 3.14.1.

In order for the OIG to establish that a FoodShare recipient has committed an IPV, it has the burden to prove two separate elements by clear and convincing evidence. The recipient must have: 1) committed; and 2) intended to commit an intentional program violation per 7 C.F.R. §273.16(e)(6).

"Clear and convincing evidence" is an intermediate standard of proof which is more than the "preponderance of the evidence" used in most civil cases and less than the "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard used in criminal cases. It is used in civil cases where a higher standard is required because the outcome could result in serious social consequences for, or harsh effects on an individual. See 32A C.J.S., Evidence §1023. While the terminology for this intermediate standard of proof varies from state to state, it is clear that it is what is required by the FoodShare regulations. See Jackson v. State, 546 So.2d 745 (Fla. App. 2 Dist. 1989).

In Kuehn v. Kuehn, 11 Wis.2d 15, 26 (1959), the court held that, “Defined in terms of quantity of proof, reasonable certitude or reasonable certainty in ordinary civil cases may be attained by or be based on a mere or fair preponderance of the evidence. Such certainty need not necessarily exclude the probability that the contrary conclusion may be true. In fraud cases it has been stated the preponderance of the evidence should be clear and satisfactory to indicate or sustain a greater degree of certitude. Such degree of certitude has also been defined as being produced by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence. Such evidence, however, need not eliminate a reasonable doubt that the alternative or opposite conclusion may be true. In criminal cases, while not normally stated in terms of preponderance, the necessary certitude is universally stated as being beyond a reasonable doubt.”

Thus, in order to find that an IPV was committed, the trier of fact must derive from the evidence, a firm conviction as to the existence of each of the two elements even though there may exist a reasonable doubt that the opposite is true.

Wisconsin Jury Instruction – Civil 205 is also instructive. It provides:

Clear, satisfactory and convincing evidence is evidence which when weighed against that opposed to it clearly has more convincing power. It is evidence which satisfies and convinces you that “yes” should be the answer because of its greater weight and clear convincing power. “Reasonable certainty” means that you are persuaded based upon a rational consideration of the evidence. Absolute certainty is not required, but a guess is not enough to meet the burden of proof. This burden of proof is known as the “middle burden.” The evidence required to meet this burden of proof must be more convincing than merely the greater weight of the credible evidence but may be less than beyond a reasonable doubt.

Further, the McCormick treatise states that “it has been persuasively suggested that [the clear and convincing evidence standard of proof] could be more simply and intelligibly translated to the jury if they were instructed that they must be persuaded that the truth of the contention is highly probable.” 2 McCormick on Evidence § 340 (John W. Strong gen. ed., 4th ed. 1992).

In the case at hand, the Department of Health Services, Office of the Inspector General (OIG) asserts that the respondent intentionally violated SNAP regulations by trafficking her FoodShare benefits. 7 CFR §271.2 defines “trafficking” as, “the buying or selling of coupons, ATP cards or other benefits instruments for cash or consideration other than eligible food; or the exchange of firearms, ammunition, explosives, or controlled substances, as defined in section 802 of title 21, United States Code for coupons.”

The OIG argued that Respondent’s use of her EBT card showed suspicious transactions, such as transactions with large dollar amounts over $25.00 give the size of the store, large numbers of transactions in a short amount of time, and transactions with even dollar or half dollar amounts. In particular the OIG noted a series of transactions that took place on July 7, 2012.

Exhibit 8 shows that within a 10-hour period on July 7 Respondent made five purchases at [REDACTED] and attempted seven. They were for the following amounts: $40.85; $38.54; $34.50; $25.08; and, $13.93. Her only other transactions at [REDACTED] during a three-month period was a purchase three days later, then once in early August and once in early September, all of them under $10. The July 7 purchases are highly suspicious of trafficking and when the OIG representative testified accordingly the Respondent offered no explanation for them. Because this is not a criminal case an inference can be drawn that when Respondent does not attempt to rebut the evidence, then she has no credible rebuttal. For these reasons, I conclude that the OIG proved its case by clear and convincing evidence.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The OIG has met its burden to prove that the Respondent trafficked her benefits at [REDACTED] between July 1, 2012 and October 31, 2012.

NOW, THEREFORE, it is ORDERED

That IPV Case Number [REDACTED] is hereby sustained and that the Department of Health Services may impose the disqualification period.
