DISCUSSION

MA overpayment recovery is authorized by Wis. Stat., §49.497(1):

(a) The department may recover any payment made incorrectly for benefits provided under this subchapter or s. 49.665 if the incorrect payment results from any of the following:

1. A misstatement or omission of fact by a person supplying information in an application for benefits under this subchapter or s. 49.665.
2. The failure of a Medical Assistance or Badger Care recipient or any other person responsible for giving information on the recipient's behalf to report the receipt of income or assets in an amount that would have affected the recipient's eligibility for benefits.
3. The failure of a Medical Assistance or Badger Care recipient or any other person responsible for giving information on the recipient's behalf to report any change in the recipient's financial or nonfinancial situation or eligibility characteristics that would have affected the recipient's eligibility for benefits or the recipient's cost-sharing requirements.

See also the department's BC+ Handbook, Appendix 28.2. The overpayment must be caused by the client's error. Overpayments caused by agency error are not recoverable.

The agency has the burden of demonstrating, by a preponderance of the evidence, that there was an overpayment of benefits.

In this case, the agency asserts that [REDACTED] lived with the Petitioner from September, 2012 – May, 2015 and the Petitioner did not report [REDACTED] as part of the household. As a result, [REDACTED]'s income was not included in determining the household's eligibility for MA/BC+ benefits. The agency calculated the overpayment by including [REDACTED]'s income as household income. It determined that the household income exceeded the gross income limit for the program and it therefore seeks to recover MA/BC+ benefits issued to the household from September 1, 2012 – May 31, 2015.

In support of its argument, the agency presented various evidence in support of its argument that [REDACTED] lived with the Petitioner, including court records, a lease, a landlord statement, voter registration, a credit report, employer records, child support records and the fact that the Petitioner and [REDACTED] had two children together during this period. The agency also presented evidence of [REDACTED]'s and the Petitioner's wages to demonstrate how it calculated household income and the overpayment.

At the hearing, the Petitioner and [REDACTED] testified that they were married in 2011 but never lived together until recently. They testified that [REDACTED] saw the children regularly and that he used the Petitioner's address as his own but he did not live there. With regard to the lease, they testified that [REDACTED]'s name was on the lease because without it, the Petitioner would not have been able to obtain the apartment. They asserted that the landlord who provided the statement that they lived together never saw [REDACTED] and would have no basis for knowing whether [REDACTED] was living there. The Petitioner and [REDACTED] testified that they also had a dispute with this landlord and that he may provide a statement against them as a form of retaliation. The Petitioner testified that [REDACTED] came at least twice/week to the home and babysat occasionally. She testified that he did not contribute financially to the household but did bring small things for the children. The Petitioner and [REDACTED] testified that [REDACTED] lived mostly with his mother on 51st St. during the overpayment period.

The record was held open post-hearing for the Petitioner to provide evidence to demonstrate that [REDACTED] did not live with her during the overpayment period. On July 30, 2015, the Petitioner provided a copy of page 1 of what is alleged to be [REDACTED]'s 2012 tax return showing an address on 51st St., Milwaukee. The remainder of the tax return including the signature page was not submitted. The Petitioner also submitted copies of auto repair receipts issued to [REDACTED] by an unknown auto repair shop on Flagg Ave in Milwaukee. The receipts are dated December 13, 2012, April 15, 2013, September 27, 2013 and February 3, 2014. The receipts show [REDACTED]'s address as the 51st St. address. The Petitioner also submitted a document entitled "30 day notice" which indicates that the Petitioner and [REDACTED] notified the landlord of the Mariners St. apartment of their intention to move from the apartment. The statement is signed by the Petitioner and the office manager but it is not dated.

Based on the evidence presented, I conclude that the agency has met its burden to demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence, that [REDACTED] resided with the Petitioner and the Petitioner failed to properly report her household composition and income during the period of September 1, 2012 – May 31, 2015. The evidence presented by the agency far outweighs that provided by the Petitioner and [REDACTED]. The tax return is only for the year 2012 and only page one of the return was submitted. I cannot conclude from the submission that this was the actual return filed with the IRS. Also, no returns for the years 2013 – 14 were submitted. The auto repair receipts are lacking in credibility due to having no auto repair shop named and no signatures of any kind. The 30 day notice provides nothing more than evidence of [REDACTED] and the Petitioner's intent to move from the apartment and that there is no further dispute regarding payments.

I reviewed the agency's calculation of the overpayment. I find no error in the calculation of the overpayment of $2,061.06 for benefits issued on behalf of the Petitioner. The Medicaid Benefits Paid Reports indicate the paid claims and the capitation rate paid by the Medicaid program on behalf of the Petitioner during the overpayment period.

With regard to the overpayment for benefits paid on behalf of the children, the agency did not provide any Benefits Paid Reports. I cannot, therefore, determine whether the agency properly calculated the overpayment. I must find that the agency has not produced sufficient evidence to demonstrate that it properly seeks to recover an overissuance of $1,542.18 from the Petitioner for benefits paid on behalf of the Petitioner's children. This decision does not prohibit the agency from establishing a new claim against the Petitioner for the benefits paid on behalf of the Petitioner's children if it desires to do so.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The agency properly seeks to recover an overissuance of MA/BC+ benefits paid on behalf of the Petitioner in the amount of $2,061.06 for the period of April 1, 2013 – February 28, 2014 (Claim # [REDACTED]).

The agency may not recover an overissuance of MA/BC+ benefits paid on behalf of the Petitioner's children in the amount of $1,542.18 for the period of April 1, 2013 – February 28, 2014.

THEREFORE, it is ORDERED

That as to Claim # [REDACTED], the Petitioner's appeal is dismissed.

That as to Claim # [REDACTED], the matter is remanded to the agency to take all administrative steps necessary to rescind the claim and to cease all collection activities related to the claim. These actions shall be completed as soon as possible but no later than 10 days from the date of this decision.
