To the Public Records Board:

In this age of rampant electronic communications, the board's decision to limit public access is ludicrous. All types of communications dealing with governmental decision making should be available for public scrutiny. There is no such thing as "transitory records with temporary significance".

May I remind the board you are supposed to protect the interests of Wisconsin citizens not aid the Governor in his quest for secrecy.

All electronic communications must be open records available for public scrutiny.

Sincerely,
