It becomes painfully obvious to the citizens of Wisconsin, that the current ploy is that our legislators are above the rest of the peons who have elected them to office. What is it that you feel needs to be hidden from those of us who pay your salary. Are you afraid that we might become aware of the outside arm twisting from contributors who have bought legislators. Will it become known that legislation is actually written by outside agents who will benefit from it and not by those elected to office. Are you afraid of it becoming known that you are only pawns, bought and paid for, to do the bidding of your masters. Your attempts on changing the rules last summer met with outrage, why do you think voters feel differently now. The pendulum swings both ways, and even though the voting districts have been gerrymandered, there might be a time when those in power now will want a accounting when they are in the minority.
