Subject: Electronic records

Wisconsin has always been a shining light in the area of open public access to records of state business. It saddens me, no, angers me, that our current state government continues to try to restrict the public's access to written materials, in this case electronic, that have been created by our public servants. While the Public Records Board may not have intended it with their recent, unannounced, redefinition of "transitory records", the current administration has already made it clear that they would be more than happy to use that change to deny public access to records of activities that the public should have the right to observe. Please, please rescind your decision. Make these records public again, or face the wrath of voters and citizens who are tired of being kept in the dark.
