As a lifelong citizen of the great State of Wisconsin, I am dismayed by the Public Records Board's secretive actions last summer resulting in limiting access to public records. It seems to me that the Board should be involved in ensuring that public records are accessible, rather than trying to secretly do the opposite. How ironic that our guardians of public records would engage in such clandestine behavior. I believe that the Board now has an opportunity to correct its outrageous missteps by rescinding its actions to limit access to electronic public records, and that this opportunity must be utilized fully and immediately. Nothing less, I'm sure, will be acceptable to the citizens of Wisconsin. Thank you. Sincerely, William Majhenich
