PUBLIC records, PUBLIC officials, PUBLIC property; the emphasis is PUBLIC. If public officials don't want the public that elected them to office, know about the business they conduct in the name of serving the PUBLIC, let those officials resign their PUBLIC OFFICE and move back to the private sector.

Personally, I'm suspicious of anyone who claims or wants to be a public servant or, a servant of any kind.

The definition of servant connotes that person is in service to another who is paying "the freight" of the servant. As a tax-payer, footing the bill for those that want to limit access to PUBLIC records, in the fulfillment of the duties of that PUBLIC office, is tantamount to saying our elected PUBLIC officials answer to no one but themselves or the party they represent; NOT THE PEOPLE THEY REPRESENT !

A public official, creating documents related to the public office that official holds, be that official - Republican, Democrat, Independent or other, has a sworn duty and responsibility to make ALL of those documents available to the people that PUBLIC official serves. If that is too much to demand, then those who want to hide what they are doing in public office need to get out of that office and move back to the private sector where, PRIVATE is the operative word.
