Subject: Limiting access to public records

As a citizen of Wisconsin I am appalled by our state government's movement toward secrecy and reduced public access. There should be complete transparency for information generated by state employees and elected officials except for those situations already defined by federal law and state laws in effect before the present legislature and administration. State lawmakers and appointees can no longer be trusted to defend the citizen's access to public records. The current trend toward secrecy leads one to wonder, what do they have to hide? The Public Records Board should be safeguarding the public's right to know what state government is doing. Rescind the proposed changes.
