Subject: Limiting access to text messages

When a person accepts a position with a public entity it should be understood that by doing so, one gives implied consent to have text messages , e mails, Facebook posts and any future means of communicating examined and available to the public. If your taking my money, I'm paying for full access to watch what your doing in your capacity as a public servant. This issue transcends political parties, and one wonders how many disasters could have been averted throughout history had people known in advance what was really going. This is a "no brainer".
