Subject: New definition of "transitory" in public records

Since electronic messaging and texting is a convenient and easy way to share information and to communicate, it is being used more frequently to conduct business. I, as a taxpayer am paying for your use of these electronic devices. You need to define exactly what business you intend to do with these devices. Without definition there is an open door to abuse and hiding government business from the general public.

I object to government tax paid business being done secretly. If this is what you continue to pursue, I will be joining many others who will show my objection at the voting booth. I am very suspicious of the present republican run government in WI.
