Subject: Rescind action to limit text messages etc. by public employees

In the 21st century electronic communications of all varieties convey critical information, especially when used by public employees. This is no longer a novelty or passing fad. Significant decisions are made with a single message.

Moreover, clean government relies on transparency. This would include the availability of all forms of electronic communication by public employees.

It is paramount that any decisions to limit availability of electronic communications be rescinded.
