Subject: Your decision to limit public access to electronic communications by public employees

To whom it may concern:

Having lived in Wisconsin now for almost 30 years, I've witnessed a lot of changes. Some have been good, benefiting the majority of the populace. Some not so good. But this decision to effectively "keep the public in the dark" regarding our state government and its conduct is far and away your greatest transgression. It smacks of the types of actions taken by a closed, totalitarian state. What possibly are you afraid of? What are you trying to hide from the public? Public officials use the term transparency, but where's the transparency in Wisconsin government? You need to reconsider this action or suffer the consequences come reelection time.
