To the Public Records Board,

Trust in government is essential, as it is in business relationships, family, friendships, et al. Unfortunately we have learned over many years to distrust individuals in political power, from both sides of the aisle. Whatever assurances the public can have that the work of our government is being done with integrity, in the open, with full inclusion, is simply essential. Trust has withered to such a degree that nearly all politicians and their policies are treated with derision because we don't know the background and the processes that led to a particular decision. Thus, we need everything possible to be be out on the table for review. Please work to ensure that our government is open in every way possible to our eyes.
