Subject: secrecy in government

I am furious at what's been going on in Madison. Elected representatives are public servants, and taxpayers have a right to know what these representatives are saying and doing. Conducting the people's business in secret, and using this secrecy to maintain a hold on power, is contemptible. Vos and company indicate a sensitivity to public outrage at this, but immediately seek new ways to get around our tradition of open records. Vos and his ilk ought to be tarred and feathered. I hope the Public Records Board is composed of better people than that bunch of criminals.
